

Souriau receives Airbus' best supplier award

Souriau, the European leader in aeronautical connectors was named Supplier of the Year 2006, in the Main Supplier category by the Airbus centre for electrical excellence. The Award was presented during the Airbus (SQAL) Supplier Day ceremony held on December 14, 2006.

Souriau is one of Airbus' main suppliers for on-board electrical and optical connection equipment. Airbus partner for many years now, Souriau continually invests in its industrial facilities and the development of new technologies like high power transmission systems, composite materials or very high speed signal transmission via copper or optical lines.

Souriau was distinguished for the quality of its products, its excellent logistics with 95% of on time deliveries and its reactivity in the development of new products.

"We are especially proud of this nomination which is the result of the entire company's commitment to total quality and the constant improvement process at our French and Moroccan production facilities over the past three years" explains Souriau's President François Calvarin.
